MAJOR GENERAL JOHN M MILLER

Major General John M. Miller is mobilization assistant to commander, Air Mobility Command, who is also the Commander in Chief, United States Transportation Command, Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

The general entered the Air Force as a distinguished graduate of Officer Training School in 1964. His initial assignment was as an aircraft maintenance officer on the supersonic B-58 Hustler and the KC-135 tanker aircraft. He has over 25 years of aircraft maintenance experience from flight line to backshop, job control, and deputy commander for Maintenance of a composite wing of rescue and weather reconnaissance aircraft. He came to Scott from the Air Force Materiel Command where he spent six years working logistics issues for aircraft acquisition and depot support.

He is both an FAA-certified pilot and an Airframe and Powerplant mechanic, with over 16,000 flying hours in fixed and rotary wing aircraft. His worldwide flying experience includes Europe, Asia, and South America.
